

Pannonia - Black soil: a journey

You look at one. You read the other one. You combine them all and go beyond what you are looking at and reading. You do not know what it is but you might feel it, surprised and inspired. Pages of this book are collected down the roads in that land of Black soil. You walk and became a step. Because you do not choose that road, it chooses you. First I was an island in this open sea. Then I realized, I became it. Day remained day but night became night. What is the source of this darkness or is it without a source ? Always, is. Is it the beginning of the end or the end of beginning ? When the ice storm hit, it became clear what each blade of grass, wood and man is made of. A bud sprouted from a bare branch. Music started from a complete silence.
