

A Record of Awakening

The rare and inspiring example of a life consistently and uncompromisingly dedicated to the practice of the Dharma.- Uryen Sangharakshita The remarkable fruit of more than twenty years immersion in Buddhist practice: a practice that has been both deep and far-reaching. In this book Aloka David Smith, an ordinary working-class chap who came across Buddhism, shares his extraordinary inner experience. Taking us through his journey from initial practice in the Zen tradition and three years as a Theravadin monk to his recent years as a lay practitioner in East London he describes the basic principles of his practice and the process whereby the tap root of ignorance is cut and the Awakened Mind is born. His account reminds us that the Awakened Mind is within the reach of every one of us prepared to make the effort.
