

Cleo

A novel about a beautiful and talented black female journalist who is an intimate friend of black entertainment and political celebrities during the turbulent civil rights era in the 1950s and 1960s. Her professional and private life takes a quantum leap when she crosses paths with a cynical but equally talented white male publicist. Sparks fly from their first meeting and throughout a stormy passionate affair that survives their independent assignments to foreign countries. The drama of this turning point in history includes contact and comments with Lena Horne, Dorothy Dandridge, Billie Holiday, Brock Peters, James Baldwin, Red Foxx, Tom Bradley, Dorothy Height, Golda Meir, Tefawa Belawa, and other civil rights pioneers. It is not surprising that Thomas books tend to walk on the wild side, inasmuch as he was Lenny Bruce's only collaborator, co-authoring the comedy material on Bruce's first three comedy albums and three screenplays, plus photographing his album covers, filming the pilot for the first feature, and booking him into critical career-changing venues. Critics have described Thomas' memoir, Lenny Bruce: The Making of a Prophet, in terms such as, "He superbly evokes the atmosphere of the cheap Hollywood nightclubs and coffeehouses, and His work sometimes reads like a Bogart script." Thomas' multi-faceted career as a screenwriter, book author, photographer, cinematographer, filmmaker, and public relations executive spanned the latter half of the twentieth century, working for and with A-list celebrities such as Frank Sinatra, Sheky Greene, and others. Some of his later fiction parallels those careers such as his anthology of twelve short stories titled Hollywood Tales From The Outer Fringe.

He grew up in the New Orleans and Gulf Coast areas, eventually marrying and divorcing his high school teacher, as told in his memoir The Genteel Poor. He worked as a cocktail pianist in New Orleans French Quarter, which provided the background for his novel French Quarter Odyssey. He served a year of combat in Korea which was the background for his Korean War novel The Josan And The Jee. His latest work, A Place For Us, is a biography of Wendy Wolf, a childhood polio survivor who became a charismatic advocate for people with disabilities. Most of Thomas work is available on Amazon in both print and e book editions. Lenny Bruce: The Making of a Prophet is also available in a Japanese edition from DHC of Tokyo. Thomas will soon be releasing a science fiction trilogy and an anthology of short stories laid in New Orleans. He resides in Tucson, Arizona, where he occasionally teaches writing and film production in between working on a variety of literary and film projects.
