

A Horse in the House

A Horse in the House is a collection of thirty-three articles written by equine humorist Bob Goddard. While the articles cover a wide variety of equine related topics including the nature of horses, riding, equipment, costs, horse shows, transportation and chores, the common theme running through all them is the impact that living with these magnificent beasts have upon an ordinary family. Especially the father. This is a fun, easy to read book for both horse lovers and for those who, through no fault of their own, find themselves living with horse lovers. There is probably a serious message in there somewhere, but readers are advised not to look too hard for it.
