

Christ in Islam and Christianity: The Representation of Jesus in the Quran and the Classical Muslim Commentaries

The way in which Jesus is portrayed in the Quran is at times ambiguous and has given rise to a bewildering variety of conflicting interpretations. Neal Robinson first outlines the various Christian approaches to the subject and then explains the principles of Muslim exegesis before looking in detail at what five classical Sunni commentaries say about Jesus return, the crucifixion, the miracles and the virginal conception. Further chapters examine the same key topics from the viewpoint of Shiite and Sufi exegesis.
