

Ritual and Religion in the Making of Humanity (Cambridge Studies in Social and Cultural Anthropology)

This book argues that religion can and must be reconciled with science. Combining adaptive and cognitive approaches, it is a comprehensive analysis of religions evolutionary significance, and its inextricable interdependence with language. It is also a detailed study of religions main component, ritual, which constructs the conceptions that we take to be religious and therefore central in the making of humanitys adaptation. The text amounts to a manual for effective ritual, illustrated by examples drawn from a range of disciplines.
