

The Interruptive Word: Eberhard Jungel on the Sacramental Structure of Gods Relation to the World (T&T Clark Studies in Systematic Theology)

While German Lutheran theologian Eberhard Jungel (1934-) has made a number of significant contributions to contemporaneous discussions of sacramental theology, this topic has largely been ignored by interpreters of his thought. This study summarizes and evaluates, through a close reading of primary and secondary source materials, Jungels approach to the problem of sacrament. R. David Nelson considers Jungels claim that the word of God functions sacramentally as it addresses its hearer, and analyses his assertion that Jesus Christ is the unique and preeminent sacrament of God for the world. Progressing to an exploration of Jungels ecclesiology, Nelson reveals Jungels interesting approach to the question of the churchs sacramentality. The volume concludes with an investigation into Jungels doctrines of baptism and the Lords Supper. The Interruptive Word demonstrates that Jungel consistently appeals to the category of interruption for describing Gods sacramental relation to the world and its actualities, concluding that the hegemony of the category of interruption in Jungels theology of sacrament raises important questions concerning its coherence and tenability.
