

The Limerickiad: Volume III: From Byron to Baudelaire (Limerickiad)

Every week since 2006, the award-winning cartoonist and writer Martin Rowson has been making a fool of himself in The Independent on Sunday by reducing the work of some of the worlds best-loved writers to a series of puerile and filthy limericks. Following the success of the first two volumes of The Limerickiad (from Gilgamesh to Jane Austen) The Limerickiad volume III lays waste to the literary greats of the nineteenth-century. Rowson mangles Melville, puts the boot into the Brontes and defaces the complete works of Dickens. He even finds time to write a limerick in homage to its inventor (When a runcible fellow called Lear...).
