Not illustrated. 1812 edition. Excerpt: ... His writings are, or may be, in every body's hand, and every body will judge of them as they please: I shall therefore leave them to do so, and only affirm, what I know from more than a single experience, that they are an estimable treasure for the devout people of this nation. Were I to speak particularly of all his private and public virtues; of his constant preaching, and prudent and faithful discharge of all the parts of his Ministry; the many charities and good works he did in the course of his life, and the liberal provision (in proportion to his substance) which he made for them in his last Will and Testament, I should far exceed the brevity I propose. I hope some abler hand will give his life and character at large, and do justice to his memory; and so convince the world, that (though he was thereby eased of a great burden, yet) it was no small unhappiness to the Church, that he was not raised to the highest order in it. 1 3 Such Such were the persons, whose pious endeavours have concurred, in their different times and manners, to produce this little Manual of Devotion. The first, and indeed the only edition I ever saw of Bishop Andrew's Private Prayers, in Greek and Latin, was printed at Oxford in the year 1675. By the best judgment I can make of that Book, he appears to have collected, from time to time in the course of his reading, materials for every part of Prayer; which he wrote down, some in Greek and some in Latin. These at first were chiefly hints; but out of them he composed several Prayers, that he used privately in his Closet, and some of them publicly in the Church, before Sermon, having translated them into English Many of these Prayers were completely finished,
