

What Makes You Happy?: How small changes can lead to big improvements in your life

What do you want most in life? Most people would answer: I just want to be happy. Sounds simple, but what does happiness look like? And is the life you lead now bringing you closer to happiness? Many of us lead lives that are too rushed, too stressed and too focused on things that don't really matter. Our lifestyles are making us physically and mentally unwell, they're making us unhappier, not happier. In What Makes You Happy? psychologist Fiona Robards has created a powerful tool for transforming your life. By focusing on ten life domains ranging from finances to relationships, personal style to caring for the environment and making use of practical exercises and searching questions, it guides you down the path to finding your own simple solutions to everyday happiness. Whether dipped into throughout the year or read as part of your daily routine, What Makes You Happy? will enable you to: appreciate what's already going well in your life, discover those areas where you can create greater wellbeing and happiness, draw on your strengths and values, tap into your creativity, create change in a way that suits your individual circumstances, set out on a journey to sustainable, long-term wellbeing as you stress less and simplify your life. Fiona Robards is a psychologist with four Masters degrees: in Psychology, Art Therapy, Management and Public Health. A senior lecturer, Fiona teaches Medical and Public Health students at the University of Sydney and UNSW Medical Schools. She regularly presents at international conferences and has significant academic publications, including academic book chapters, journal articles and reports. Fiona is passionate about solution-focused and other strength-based approaches. Over five years, Fiona researched What Makes You Happy?, synthesising ideas from her studies, counselling and management practice. In the resulting book, she encourages you to find simple solutions to everyday happiness for yourself, for others and the environment.
