

Immigration Law in the Workplace

On November 19, 2009 ICE announced another 1,000 I-9 audits for employers nationwide (click here for the press release). This is in addition to the 654 audits that were announced in July 2009. Now more than ever, employers need to ensure that they are in compliance with federal immigration laws! The ALL-NEW Immigration Law in the Workplace is the one resource that correctly anticipated the governments direction - and it focuses intensely on the newest changes in the Immigration Law. Over 8 million employers have reporting requirements to the IRS, Social Security Administration and the Department of Homeland Security for their U.S. and foreign workers. Thousands of government contractors and subcontractors will soon need to comply with new federal regulations that require them to use the E-Verify electronic system for new hires and their existing employees. Immigration Law in the Workplace is an immigration handbook written specifically for American companies. It covers everything you deal with - and will deal with - on a daily basis in regard to foreign workers. It walks you through all the current steps and helps you set up a framework so youre not exposing your company to federal investigation, federal prosecution, and felony charges. This unique resource is current - and it will keep you current going forward, demystifying immigration law matters, putting them into understandable terms, and giving you exactly - and only - what you need to get the job done. The book fully covers: I-9 Audits, and how to prepare for them Enforcement Sanctions E-verify IMAGE Social Security No-Match Letters Tax Issues for Foreign Employees Safe Harbor Rules Coming Changes Brought on by the Supreme Courts Flores-Figueroa decision Immigration Law in the Workplace is the first and last book your company will turn
